There is a direct correlation between attendance and student achievement. In order to succeed academically, your child must attend school regularly.

Literacy is the Key to Life-Long Learning

- Make reading a part of your child's daily routine.
- Speak with your child about current school topics – ask questions and expand ideas.
- Listen to your child retell stories and explain information learned at school.
- Provide opportunities and time for your child to write (e.g., thank-you note, grocery list, list of errands, and summaries).

Homework Tips for Parents

- Inquire with your child's teacher on the school's homework implementation plan.
- Encourage your child to read 30 minutes daily in addition to homework assignments.
- Contact the teacher to clear up any misunderstandings, troubleshoot problems and be better informed about your child's homework expectations.
- Ask teacher about parent workshops and/or online tutorials available to help you and your child understand the skill being taught to better assist your child with homework assignments.
